

THE NETFLIX MYSTERY SHOW YOU SHOULD BINGE-WATCH

Pick a sidekick!

Stranger Things

This was wildly popular when it came out, and for good reason. Despite dragging my feet, I was hooked by the second episode. Besides the 80s throwbacks, the best thing about the show is the character development of the three children.

Miss Fisher's Murder Mysteries

Set in Australia in the 1920s, this series follows Miss Fisher in her crime-solving adventures. The plots are solid, the characters develop beyond what you would expect, and Miss Fisher challenges everyone's ideas of what women are capable of.

Jonathan Strange and Mr. Norrell

Not technically a mystery, but the characters are constantly learning who's who, so I'm calling it one. An interesting exploration of the idea of Faerie—and I think of the Green Man every time I hear a wall creak.

Bletchley Circle

History nerds will love this. A group of four women in post-war England use their skills from working with the Enigma code to solve local crimes. Another story about betraying expectations to do good.

Sherlock

A modern re-telling of Doyle's classic stories. Set in modern day Baker Street, the show is as much an exploration of Sherlock's character as it is about the crime-solving. Cumberbatch can't be beat!

Bleak House

A fantastic mini-series based on Dickens's novel. My husband wanted to keep watching to find out what happened! I won't tell you how many episodes we watched in one sitting.
